Website Back Up and Running

Many of you probably noticed that the Curl San Diego website was down for much of last week. Unfortunately, we were hacked again and lost nearly all our content.

After a couple of not-so-fun days of working on it, just about everything has either been restored, or will be shortly, except for the Forum discussion boards. We couldn't salvage any of that data. That means all discussions from the last few seasons have been lost and everyone will need to re-register to participate again. The link to the new Forum is here. Please remember, sub requests do not go on the Forum. Whether you need a sub or would like to be a sub, please contact curl@curlsandiego.org so your information can be included in our weekly sub email blasts.

Our Houses Are Getting a Touch-Up

For the first time since our curling houses were installed, they're getting a touch-up!

Entirely new houses aren't an option for us for quite a while still but things are going to get better soon with repainted ring outlines and buttons for better visibility!

Stay tuned for more details.

USA Curling Has a New eShop

If you haven't already, take a moment to visit the new and improved USA Curling official online store. They have some great new t-shirt and sweatshirt designs and all purchases support the efforts of the United States Curling Association.
